

Skinner Legacies

Reasonable Accommodations and Access Policy

Applies to: All Skinner Legacies employees, contractors, interns, volunteers, and persons receiving assessment, mental health, substance use, case management, day treatment, respite, crisis, or other certified services.

Purpose

Skinner Legacies is committed to making its facilities, services, and activities accessible to everyone, including clients, visitors, job applicants, and staff. If someone needs a change or support to participate, we will discuss the request with them and review what we can provide under applicable law. A person can ask for help in their own words, verbally or in writing. They do not have to complete a form to make a request.

Access and examples

Requests may involve building access, accessible documents, interpreters or other communication aids, scheduling, service delivery, a service animal, an application or interview process, work arrangements, or another access barrier. We also consider practical assistance with language, transportation, financial or technology barriers through appropriate options or referrals; these requests are reviewed under the law and program requirements that apply to them.

Qualified interpreters and other required communication aids for effective communication are provided without charging the person. We will not routinely require a family member or friend to interpret. Staff will ask about the person's preferred means of communication and use an effective method appropriate to the situation.

How to request help

Tell any Skinner Legacies staff member what access issues you face and what would help, in writing, or through a person assisting you. Staff will promptly forward the request to the Access Coordinator. The attached request form is optional; staff will help complete it if desired. For urgent needs, staff will address access immediately when possible and escalate without waiting for paperwork.

Individual review and decision

The Access Coordinator will speak with the requester, identify the barrier and desired outcome, consider the person's preferred accommodation, and consult appropriate staff when needed. We may request only information reasonably needed to understand a disability-related need when it is not apparent; sensitive medical information is handled separately and shared only as necessary. No diagnosis is requested on the general form.

We assess effectiveness, safety, applicable clinical and program requirements, available alternatives, and whether a particular measure would fundamentally alter a service or impose an undue burden or hardship under the applicable legal standard. Cost or convenience alone is not a blanket reason to deny a request. If one option cannot be provided, we will consider another effective option with the requester.

We aim to respond promptly, ordinarily within 10 business days after receiving enough information to evaluate the request. Urgent or time-sensitive requests receive faster review. If more time is needed, we will explain the reason, give an estimated response date, and consider an interim measure. We will communicate the decision in an accessible format and document what was approved, offered, or declined and why.

Implementation, privacy and concerns

The responsible team will implement approved measures, check whether they work, and adjust them when needs change. A person may decline an offered measure without being punished; Accommodations are not conditioned on waiving a right or filing a grievance. Requests and any supporting information are treated confidentially, kept with access limited to those who need it, and retained under the applicable records schedule. No one will be retaliated against for requesting assistance, raising an access concern, or participating in review.
